THE PROPERTY REVIEW

BY KENT TARBUTTON

What an incredible time to be up in these majestic mountains. I have been enjoying it all and can still think of no place I would rather be than beautiful Blowing Rock with temperatures ranging from the single digits to the high 50s. Of course our skiers don't necessarily feel this way, and I sympathize with those who came here over the Christmas holidays in search of snow.

The lack of snow affected our December occupancy numbers for our condominiums. Our rentals came in at a disappointing -11.4% compared to 2014, but even with the big December shortfall, our 2015 year-end numbers were still up 10.6%. So despite the lack of snow and the difficulties of installing new resort-wide reservation software, we had a good year and I will stay positive and focus on that and be grateful. Some of you know my friend and retired pastor Marshall Edwards, who loves the snows and has been praying for it since Thanksgiving. He called me to sing "Frosty the Snowman" on the January morning we received the first big snowfall. I asked him if he thought his prayers had a cumulative effect. He said they probably did. So I told him that he needed to start being more specific in his prayer life, calling for a couple inches at a time with temperatures above 20 degrees!

This year's annual Polar Plunge into the icy waters of Chetola Lake saw temps in the high 40s. The water temperature had not had time to change very much and registered a brisk 38 degrees. The howls resonating from those chilly waters made it quite the show. Our friend and adamant supporter John Carter from WBTV in Charlotte was here again as the perfect Master of Ceremonies for the event. Enjoy the photos (above and on page 3) included in this edition. We not only had a new record of 122 jumpers, we also set the bar high as one of the plungers stopped the event to kneel down on the dock to propose to his girlfriend. Happily she said yes... and then they both took the literal plunge. When she climbed out I noticed her tears and figured it likely came from both experiences.

I still remember those first seven years that

Progress is being made at the Chetola Sporting Reserve

I joined them in the lake, but when I married Shelley I decided I had another good reason to live and happily retired from that event 11 years ago. I was gratefully replaced this year by a few Chetola representatives: two front desk employees as well as the child of an employee in the marketing office. We even had an old friend from the homeowners jump, as Lauren Broome checked off yet another item from her "bucket list," wearing the winning attire of the Carolina Panthers. She told me her mother, Cynthia, wanted to join her in the jump but just wasn't up to it yet. Cynthia, my advice is to leave it to the next generation!

As I mentioned above, we have installed a new resort-wide computer system. Though both expensive (paid for by my company alone) and at times frustrating, it will bring all the activities we offer and billings together at last. So guests can book all their desires in one place and their bills can be retrieved from any location or department within the resort. I could go on and on about the new conveniences to the guest, homeowners and condo renters, but I am sure you will see it in action when we have all the training and installations completed.

Along the way we have run into the typical snags of installing a new computerized system. The worst was certainly that it stopped our Chetola site's online booking ability during the same period we were losing reservations from the lack of snow. Though our guests could still call in or book online with travel companies like Expedia, Travelocity, etc., they could not book on our own website until we compiled new software. Each day we become more proficient and efficient. I want to thank our staff for their hard work and overtime in making this happen, along with the owners for patience as we untangle the web of a new direction for our resort.

Lastly I want to share that I was down at the new Chetola Sporting Reserve in early February and am very pleased to finally see that we are getting the clubhouse underway. I am happy to say that the roads are now completed. As you can see from the above photo, the foundation and block work are also in the ground. The land has been cleared and the contractor is steadily working to complete the building, which will seat 75 around the large stone fireplace and oak bar. The patio will overlook the five-box (skeet), as well as the archery, pistol, rifle and BB gun ranges that Greg, Morgan and I added when we began this project. Though the price has risen considerably as the building and activity list grew, I am pleased that we will have a real showpiece to add to Chetola's mix when completed. For those still confused about who pays for what, rest easy. Greg and I are covering the whole bill in yet another company we have created outside Chetola. This wonderful partnership with the folks at Blue Ridge Mountain Club will be the next jewel to add to Chetola, and I look forward to its opening this summer.

I hope you will be up soon to enjoy your mountain home and the many activities and events planned in 2016. When you just can't stand any more of the politics, ads and campaign jargon, escape to Chetola!

POLAR PLUNGE 2016 PANTHERS AND PROPOSALS

The overwhelming majority of this year's batch of ice cold water-loving jumpers were either decked out in Carolina Panthers gear, or dropping to a knee and asking for a hand in marriage...while decked out in Panthers gear. In what was an emotional first for the Polar Plunge, one crazy couple from Charlotte took the literal plunge before they take the metaphorical one. Needless to say, the surprise proposal left very few dry eyes in the crowd. Once again Emcee John Carter, news anchor at WBTV in Charlotte, ran what is considered the pinnacle event of the annual Blowing Rock Winterfest, trading quips with the plungers and entertaining the crowd. More than 125 festive festivalgoers plunged into a 38-degree Chetola Lake under conditions that couldn't have been more perfect: sunny skies, highs in the 40s, an ice-covered glistening lake, and plenty of Panthers fans. Turns out we didn't win the Super Bowl, but we definitely won the crowd over! ■

'SAVOR BLOWING ROCK' NEW NAME, BIGGER FESTIVAL

The 2015 Blue Ridge Wine and Food Festival was one of the best and most successful yet. This year, the annual festival has a new name: SAVOR Blowing Rock, which reflects the expanded craft beer, spirits and culinary offerings, as well as events like live concerts, that have increased over the last few years. This year's festival takes place April 14-17, and features all the wonderful experiences you've enjoyed for the past 10 years with Blue Ridge Wine & Food Festival, as well as brand new ones. To wit, a few highlights:

The festival kicks off on Thursday with TASTE!, a culinary compilation showcasing Blowing Rock and High Country restaurants serving small plate portions of their signature dishes. North Carolina beers, wine and other beverages will be available for tastings; live music completes the celebratory atmosphere under the Main Tent in downtown Blowing Rock. On Saturday, start your day off with Chetola's Corkscrew 5K. After running the hills of Chetola, you won't feel guilty overindulging in food and drink the rest of the day as you stroll the streets of Blowing Rock and sample wine and craft beers paired with local North Carolina nibbles in various satellite tents stationed downtown (beside Christopher's Wine and Cheese on Sunset Drive, in the courtyard of the Martin House on Main Street, and on the Blowing Rock Ale House property). Later, head to the Grand Tasting in the Main Tent, where you can enjoy food, beverages, wine, beer and distilled spirits. The tastings is a single session from 1pm to 5pm so you have more time to taste. Two years ago, the Reserve Wine Tasting was introduced, quickly establishing itself as one of the festival's most anticipated events. This limited seating event, hosted by Blue Ridge Mountain Club, offers tastings of 12 to 15 wines from international, national and local wineries. The Reserve Wine Tasting, held on the lawn of The Inn at Ragged Gardens, offers two sessions from which to choose. Last but not least, an array of seminars and winemaker's dinners are offered at various venues and restaurants in Blowing Rock on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. For a few details on some of these events, see box at right. For details on all SAVOR events, call the Blowing Rock Chamber at 828-295-7801 or visit www.savorblowingrock.com. ■

GRAPE EXPECTATIONS THE RETURN OF THE CORKSCREW 5K

The Chetola Corkscrew 5K is back for the fourth annual vineyard-inspired competition on Saturday, April 16. Beneficiaries of this year's race will again be the Blue Ridge Parkway Foundation and the local chapter of Girls on the Run. As usual, runners wind their way through Chetola's scenic yet undulating property and can choose between the Wine-Free Division and the Wine Lovers Division (which adds 4 stations of wine "shots" to the route).

After an unexpected hiatus last year due to health issues, Emcee Gary Butts makes a return to form this year, bringing his effervescent personality (and some great music) to pump up both runners and spectators. Awards will be given to the overall male and female and the overall masters male and female, as well as the top two winners in each age group for both divisions. All participants will be eligible to win a variety of door prizes, including wine, local activities and retail items. Morning-of sign-in and registration begins at 7:30am, with the race starting promptly at 8:30am. Early packet pick-up will also be held on Friday from 4-6pm in the Recreation Center.

Not a runner? No worries. Feel free to walk the course as a member of either division. Or enjoy the outdoor food and Bloody Mary bar as you cheer on the participants. To register, call 828-295-5533 or visit chetola.com. ■

'DENIM BALL' IN THE WORKS FUNDRAISER PLANNED FOR MOSES CONE HOUSE

Moses H. Cone

As many of you know, Moses Cone Memorial Park is a unit of the National Park Service. It was owned and developed by Moses H. Cone and his brother Caesar Cone, who together brought denim production to the South and created a textile empire that still exists today. Beginning in 1897, Moses (who earned the nickname The Denim King) constructed Flat Top Manor as his mountain retreat. Following his death in 1908, Moses' wife Bertha operated the estate for 40 years. After her death, the estate eventually became part of the Blue Ridge Parkway.

The Blue Ridge Parkway Foundation is undertaking an extensive effort to rehabilitate the Manor and its surrounding landscape to better serve the community, visitors and ensure the future of this beautiful estate. One of the strategies they have developed is to have a "Denim Ball" benefiting the estate. As of this writing, the ball is scheduled for early August. It will feature wonderful entertainment, a delicious selection of food, dancing and outstanding speakers. If you plan on being up in the mountains in early August, consider attending this wonderful event. More information and details about the event will be posted in the next newsletter and on social media.

BOARD COMMUNICATIONS BY DAVE ROEVER, BOARD PRESIDENT

As I write this letter, I am preparing the agenda for the Lakes POA board meeting on February 27. We will have a very full agenda. Two of the more important items on the agenda are: (1) Discussing the Lake POA-owned weeks and a program to resale these weeks; and (2) Deciding on number of weeks to foreclose on this year. After our meeting, I will update the website with another president's letter detailing our decision on these two items and any other items of major importance.

Our POA currently owns 44 weeks and will be acquiring 9 more weeks via foreclosure, bringing the total to 53 weeks currently for sale. Please check visit www.chetolalakepoa.org/ for the updated list of available weeks. Note: There are some really good summer fixed weeks available.

Also, please mark your calendars for our annual meeting scheduled for Saturday, May 21. A "Meet & Greet" will be held Friday evening, May 20, for owners to meet the board members in a more informal setting to discuss any items prior to the annual meeting. I hope you will be able to join us. You will be receiving your voting instructions in April for electing directors to the board. There will be at least one new director slot open, if not two. If you are interested in running for the board or as a DIT (director in training) please send in your bio to me at roevered@gmail.com.

As a reminder, owners can rent any Lakes POA-owned condo week for $130 per night with a two-night minimum. This could make a great extra getaway. Booking is only available within four weeks of your planned stay. ■
